

This comes from America Coast To Coast

They asked a questionnaire of what can we do to save our country and here is an answer they got...

Election 2012 is coming up and BHO has a billion, probably from George Soros' wallet. We all need to think what we can do to keep our country free. Some of us can give money. Some of us can give our time politically, and some of us can work behind the scenes working to inform and teach others.

There were a lot of great answers, this is just one I wanted to pass on as this is the year to move out of our comfort zone and do what we can to take back our country.

What can I do to save this country?

My husband and I have been fine-tuning our "talking points" since before the 2008 election and have the most success with "turning on light bulbs" for people when we keep out mention of political parties. If we do need to, in order to make a point, we mention both a Democrat and a Republican guilty of whatever "wrong" we're addressing. We are helping to save the country by EDUCATING.

We've let the liberals "educate" our kids and the public for too long, and allowed the media to run the show. Obama would have NONE of the power he does IF the complicit media didn't give him the time of day, or if they told the truth. Educating on the ground locally and via the internet is the way we can grow our numbers the quickest. We DO have the power.

Hollywood revenues were down approximately 26% around Oscar time. I firmly believe that's because WE have awakened so many to the loud mouths who thought they could tell us how to live! We need to keep up our pressure and support artists who are willing to come forward as conservatives.

What will it take to keep the American people from losing more than they have all ready?

STOP giving in to political correctness and COMMUNICATE CLEARLY! I REFUSE to participate in conversations where people expect me to "be careful what I say." NO MORE. I've told clients of Hispanic descent on MANY occasions: "Mexico is your heritage. America is your country. You either stand with me or you're against me." MOST "get it." I've told several who are black that the black community has SPENT their capital in regard to slavery. I didn't have slaves. My family didn't have slaves. And I don't know anyone who had slaves. I don't care WHAT color God made someone on the outside, we're either in this together or we're not. I tell people who are pro-abortion that I am not their judge but that I will not allow them to disrespect me because I chose to have my child and NOT extinguish his life or the lives of his children and their children.

I RIDICULE ANYONE (following Rules for Radicals) who tries to tell me they "deserve" an education, house, car, bank account, etc. I tell these kinds of people they're pups and need to get back on the porch so the big dogs can clean up their messes.

When we speak in circles because we're guarded about what we're saying to who, our communications become cloudy, pretentious and in the case of many politicians - outright lies. So, I will only trust, respect, associate with or vote for people who speak clearly and whose words match their behaviors...no matter their color, gender, political party or age.

What can I do to make our economy better?

Our household lives by the premise of "give ten percent, save ten percent and spend the rest with thanksgiving and praise". The spending includes buying stocks and/or other items we see as investments but do not count on to survive. I buy American made as much as I possibly can. Getting or staying debt free is HUGE. Getting your priorities in order is as big. Common sense is the foundation of all. Respecting the rights of others and their freedom of choice - whether that's to drive an SUV, sports car or a Mini Cooper - if it's their money and their business, then it's neither of mine.

What can I do to get back the freedoms that are lost?

Methodically go one election at a time helping to oust those who are unworthy of our trust and respect. It will take a few election cycles and I think the huge progress we showed in 2010 will help create momentum for another big swipe in 2012. It is VITAL that we not panic, act crazy or lose trust that God's hand has been at our backs the entire time.

Too many conservatives pick at one another...

This one is the anti-Christ; that one belongs to this club; this one's daughter had an abortion; that one's son is homosexual. ALL have fallen short and all we can insist on is that we each live by our values in the face of criticism, ridicule and hardship and to the best of our abilities. God knows the intent of our hearts--INCLUDING Obama's, Soros' and anyone else we see as evil. Those of us who are Christian are told to PRAY FOR their salvation. The second half of that is when we leave it to God; those prayers are vessels that heap burning coals on the heads of the people if they REFUSE to repent. God didn't die and leave anyone else in charge.

Of course, I won't vote for ANYONE who promotes the kinds of tyrannical and ANTI-Judeo-Christian things that Obama and Soros and their minions live by. I don't either throw my pearls before swine or feed dogs what is Holy. But I trust God to do what needs to be done and that leaves me free to live my life and NOT be full of anxiety all the time or watching the Heavens for the end of the world.

It is a good possibility that Obama can get re-elected. What can I do to stop the Obama machine?

Personally, I am of the mind that as long as we do our work in the House and Senate it may actually be God's WILL that Obama and his buddies have to stick around in OUR White House and LIVE the consequences of what he's done. FEEL the heat of having to acquiesce to conservatives. What better "punishment" could there be for a narcissistic man who's taken advantage (as far as I can tell from what I've read, seen and heard) of every single person and situation he's ever been in? To have to be FRONT AND CENTER, SURROUNDED by those of us for whom he and his wife have not shown an ounce of respect or regard for as WE captain the ship??? PRICELESS!

Do I trust the person in office or do we need a change, Republican or Democrat?

CHANGE to someone NOT of the "old guard, establishment" Republican but of STRONG record to show he/she has walked his/her talk in living out his/her conservative values. I don't have to agree with everything he/she does or wants. I have to be able to RESPECT him/her and TRUST that he/she is not saying one thing and then doing another. I've heard a few of the Blue Dog Democrats speak and act consistently the last three years who I would trust before some of these "say it today and pretend you didn't tomorrow" Republicans.

What will it take for my voice to be heard?

Continued joining with local, state and national groups at rallies, online and in small groups to keep sounding the alarms, educating myself, honing the messages and "refilling" myself by being with those of like minds so I can go out and hold my ground amid those who are not.

What do I consider a religion?

Is this a trick question? :-) "What" a religion is according to a dictionary or what "religions" do I acknowledge as legitimate or ??? I'm not trying to be sarcastic. I guess I consider any group of people who are connected by the same tenets and live by those tenets to have created their own "religion." My religion is my Christian faith, so I live by Biblical tenets, including an understanding that Israel is the apple of God's eye; Jesus is my Savior and the Holy Spirit fills me with peace that passes all understanding as He guides and gifts me along my journey through this world on my way home.

Is Islam trying to conquer the world? If so how do we stop them?

Yes. We stop them by speaking the truth of their tenets and spreading the gospel, living well according to our faith and praying that God will continue to have mercy on us in leading us forward in our battles to save and preserve America.

Does America need another revolution? If so, are you ready to commit to that?

Personally, I don't believe that bloodshed is an answer. I believe that America has all that is necessary to correct course via our prayers, wits, intellect, abilities to communicate and behaviors that set good examples. We're angry. Anger is merely a symptom of underlying problems - being used, abused, violated or oppressed. Acting out in anger rarely works. But RESPONDING to anger with thoughtful, intelligent plans and convictions nearly always works. We have one particularly stubborn client who is always trying to debate how awful we greedy, war mongering conservatives are. I refuse to engage and tell him that when he can discuss issues in a civil manner basing his points on facts instead of feelings I will talk to him, otherwise he is free to take his business elsewhere. So far, he's still here and doesn't go near political discussion with me. I.e. we need to work SMARTER, not harder.

We need to remember that we're conservatives because we're stronger and more self-reliant than liberals. We're willing to be accountable for our choices - good and bad. We play, we pay. Conversely, many liberals are of weaker mind and spirit. They tend to be those who want to live in fantasy, stay in denial and be taken care of. Even many pastors are liberal Democrat because they are accustomed to being taken care of by the members of their churches.

Our big mistake was we tried to treat liberals as "equals" when in reality they are often not "wired" for independence. Granted, many throw tantrums like kids wanting to be independent but like with the kids it's up to us to draw boundaries and be the "bad guys." In treating them as equals liberals were able to gain foothold with money and money translated into power. So, people like Nancy Pelosi, Barney Frank, etc. got platforms to operate from. Really? I wouldn't trust either one of them to watch my grandkids for a day. But we also need to remember that by virtue of our independent natures we WILL disagree and not coalesce as easily because we're not the "weaker sheeple." We MUST get past thinking we're EVER going to agree on all things and focus on RESPECTING one another who speak and live the BASIC tenets of conservatism and constitutionalism. But commitment to do what has to be done vs. allowing myself and mine to be "ruled?" Absolutely!

We have been too passive for too long. Is it time to get active?

Of course, it's time to be active. But we're each active according to our locations, abilities, spiritual gifts, financial resources, etc. EACH part of the body serves a vital function but it is in the whole working together that we are unbeatable. God did not give us spirits of fear. I do NOT fear the likes of old geezer Soros or sissy pants Obama or any of their minions. Greater is He who is in me than ANY of them or theirs.

For anyone who was kind, brave and considerate enough to read all this....THANK YOU!!! :~)

I think we're a great group of sincere, bright, talented and capable people. I have every confidence that we WILL ROCK THIS COUNTRY back onto her center.
